

IC SPICY

IC SPICY Marketing Scripts

Shill hard. Sound real. Stay professional.

For videos, demos, buyer calls, and casual community promotion.

Farm-grown heat. Chef-built flavor. Blockchain-backed provenance.

Prepared May 2026 - Draft marketing material; legal review required before public token claims.

90-Second Hero Script

Most seasoning brands start in a boardroom. IC SPICY starts in the soil.

In Zone 10a Southwest Florida, we grow rare chili peppers under real sun, real weather, and real pressure. These are not anonymous commodity peppers blended into another generic shaker. These are living plants with a story.

Every seedling, every transplant, every harvest, and every batch begins with grower discipline built over 30 years.

Then the flavor goes into the hands of culinary craft: artisan spice blends designed with the mindset of luxury fine dining and an ACF award-winning chef. The goal is not just heat. Heat is easy. The goal is balance, depth, smoke, fruit, salt, acid, aroma, and finish.

This is where rare peppers become pantry weapons.

IC SPICY is building the next generation of seasonings: farm-grown, chef-built, digitally transparent. From plants to peppers, from peppers to blends, from blends to your table.

McCormick made spices mainstream. Kinder's made seasoning fun. IC SPICY is here to make heat collectible, traceable, and unforgettable.

Rare. Hot. Alive. Welcome to IC SPICY.

30-Second Casual Script

IC SPICY is a rare pepper nursery in Southwest Florida turning real peppers into chef-designed artisan seasonings and on-chain provenance products. Think farm-grown heat, luxury flavor, and QR-backed origin instead of another anonymous grocery-store spice jar. We are building for pepper heads, cooks, chefs, and anyone who wants a seasoning brand with a real story behind it.

Retail Buyer Script

IC SPICY gives your shelf a premium heat brand with a real origin story. The line is built around rare peppers grown in Zone 10a Southwest Florida, chef-designed flavor profiles, clean premium positioning, and QR-enabled provenance storytelling.

It speaks to three fast-moving shoppers: grilling enthusiasts, global flavor explorers, and younger consumers looking for bold, authentic, traceable products.

We would launch with a disciplined three-to-four-SKU set, support it with social content, demos, QR education, and velocity-focused promotions. The goal is not to flood the shelf. The goal is to prove turns, reorders, and shopper excitement.

X / Community Shill

IC SPICY is what happens when a rare pepper nursery, 30 years of Zone 10a growing experience, chef-built seasoning blends, and ICP provenance all collide.

We are not making another random spice jar. We are building a farm-to-flame brand that can live online, in kitchens, at farmers markets, and eventually on grocery shelves next to the giants.

Founder Intro

I am building IC SPICY because I believe the next great seasoning brand should come from the grower, not the boardroom. I want customers to taste rare peppers, understand where they came from, and feel the difference between commodity heat and intentional flavor.

McCormick / Kinder's Comparison

Respect to McCormick: they built the category. Respect to Kinder's: they proved modern seasoning brands can move fast. IC SPICY is coming from a different angle. We are smaller, sharper, more origin-driven, more chef-led, and built around rare peppers people can actually trace.