IC SPICY Grocery Demo Script

What to say during tastings without sounding pushy.

For in-store demos, farmers markets, pop-ups, and chef events.

Farm-grown heat. Chef-built flavor. Blockchain-backed provenance.

Prepared May 2026 - Draft marketing material; legal review required before public token claims.

Opening Line

Want to taste a Florida-grown rare pepper seasoning? IC SPICY is built from peppers grown in Zone 10a Southwest Florida and blended for flavor first, not just heat.

Sampling Flow

Start with the approachable blend, then offer a hotter option only after asking the customer's heat comfort level. Never surprise someone with superhot spice.

Core Talking Points

Farm-grown peppers, chef-designed blends, Florida origin, small-batch production, QR story, and the goal of bringing a better premium heat brand to grocery shelves.

Objection Handling

If they say it is too hot: explain the line has levels. If they ask about crypto: say the tech is mostly for provenance and membership, while the product is real seasoning. If they compare to Kinder's: say IC SPICY is more origin-driven and chef-led.

Close

If you like it, grab a jar today and follow the QR for the story behind the brand. We are building this from a real Florida pepper nursery, one batch at a time.
