

IC SPICY

IC SPICY Product Naming System

Rules for naming core blends and future drops.

For keeping the product line premium and coherent.

Farm-grown heat. Chef-built flavor. Blockchain-backed provenance.

Prepared May 2026 - Draft marketing material; legal review required before public token claims.

Core Naming Rule

Use names that combine place, flavor, technique, and heat. The name should feel like food, not a novelty dare.

Core Line Families

Fire Salts for finishing salts, Chef's Reserve for culinary blends, Smokehouse for grill blends, Florida Gold for local citrus and datil profiles, and Superhot Reserve for extreme blends.

Limited Drop Names

Use rare cultivar names sparingly: Charapita Gold, Death Spiral Reserve, Apocalypse Smoke, Aji Amarillo Sunfire, Scotch Bonnet Lime Fire.

Avoid

Do not overuse skulls, death jokes, or shock names. Keep extreme heat sophisticated.

Decision Test

- Would a chef, a grocery buyer, and a pepper head all understand why this product exists? If yes, the name is working.